GENERAL—ESTABLISHMENTS.

Head Quarters, Camp Jullunder, the 1st February 1860.

NOTIFICATIONS.

SEVERAL instances having lately been brought to the notice of His Excellency the Governor General, in which Officers of this Department have been charged with want of respect to Commanding Officers, or have otherwise come into collision with the Military Authorities, His Excellency desires to call the attention both of the Officers of the Department and of the local Governments under which they serve, to the Regulations affecting the relations between Officers of the Department and Commanding Officers, and to the necessity for their strict observance.

These relations are indeed of a somewhat delicate kind, requiring tact and good sense on both sides, as must always be the case where two Departments under different authority are constantly in contact.

But every Officer of the Department, whether Civil or Military, should understand that he can do nothing more pernicious to the service than when, by any act of his, he gives just cause of offence to an Officer in Military command. He is bound by the Regulations alluded to above, "to comply with the requisitions, and to act in conformity with the wishes of Commanding Officers whenever he can do so without infringing departmental rules, and he is at all times to treat Commanding Officers with becoming respect."

If he receives orders which do infringe departmental rules, or which, without infringing any specific rule, do unquestionably trench on his efficiency for the discharge of his general duties, he should first try the effect of personal explanation, which in nine cases out of ten would remove difficulty. If this fail, he should refer through his departmental superiors to the Government under which he serves, whilst carefully abstaining meanwhile from giving offence, and above all from writing disputative letters to the Military Authorities.

The local Governments, whilst giving to their Officers, in cases where these have acted in conformity with the regulations, and with the temperate spirit thus enjoined, that support which in such circumstances justice and policy alike demand, will not fail, His Excellency expects, to deal promptly and efficaciously with Officers who, by the neglect of these orders and admonitions, obstruct the public service, and bring, so far as in them lies, a bad name on the Department to which they belong.

No. 203 of 1860.—The following Notification, from the Home Department, is published in General Orders:—

No. 392, Fort William, the 20th February 1860.
—Appointment.—Major C. Douglas, of the Regiment of Artillery, to be Deputy Superintendent of Electric Telegraphs in India.

No. 204 of 1860.—The following Notifications, from the Public Works Department, are published in General Orders:—

GENERAL ESTABLISHMENT.

Head Quarters, Camp Jullunder, the 1st February 1860.—Notifications.—Several instances having lately been brought to the notice of His Excellency the Governor General, in which Officers of this Department have been charged with want of respect to Commanding Officers, or have otherwise come into collision with the Military Authorities, His Excellency desires to call the attention both of the Officers of the Department and of the local Governments under which they serve, to the Regulations affecting the relations between Officers of the Department and Commanding Officers, and to the necessity for their strict observance.

These relations are indeed of a somewhat delicate kind, requiring tact and good sense on both sides, as must always be the case where two Departments under different authority are constantly in contact.

But every Officer of the Department, whether Civil or Military, should understand that he can do nothing more pernicious to the service than when, by any act of his, he gives just cause of offence to an Officer in Military command. He is bound by the Regulations alluded to above, "to comply with the requisitions, and to act in conformity with the wishes of Commanding Officers whenever he can do so without infringing departmental rules, and he is at all times to treat Commanding Officers with becoming respect."

If he receives orders which do infringe departmental rules, or which, without infringing any specific rules, do unquestionably trench on his efficiency for the discharge of his general duties, he should first try the effect of personal explanation, which in nine cases out of ten would remove difficulty. If this fail, he should refer through his departmental superiors to the Government under which he serves, whilst carefully abstaining meanwhile from giving offence, and above all from writing disputative letters to the Military Authorities.

The local Governments, whilst giving to their Officers, in cases where these have acted in conformity with the regulations, and with the temperate spirit thus enjoined, that support which in such circumstances justice and policy alike demand will not fail, His Excellency expects, to deal promptly and efficaciously with Officers who, by the neglect of these orders and admonitions, obstruct the public service, and bring, so far as in them lies, a bad name on the Department to which they belong.

Whenever the parties to any instrument, their heirs, administrators, or assigns, for the registration of which application may be made, shall not be personally known to the Deputy Registrar, it shall be the duty of such Deputy Registrar to make such enquiry as shall satisfy him of the identity of such parties, and he shall enter in the Register Book the names in full of all the persons whose evidence he may take to prove such identity; and for obtaining the appearance and for the examination of such persons, he shall have the same powers as are vested in the Civil Courts for obtaining the appearance of witnesses and for taking evidence by any Law now in force or that may hereafter be enacted.

XXII. No instrument shall be accepted for registry, if any interlineation, erasure, or alteration shall appear on such instrument, unless the parties appearing to register the same shall attest with their signatures such interlineation, erasure, or alteration; and it shall be the duty of the District or Deputy Registrar at the time of registering such instrument to make a note in the Register of such interlineation, erasure, or alteration.

XXIII. In every General Register Office shall be kept, and every District and Deputy Registrar shall keep, three Books, which shall be entitled—and in the General Register shall be entered all instruments not included under Title Deeds, Mortgages, or Leases, and not required to be entered in such other Registers as are hereinafter provided. All entries made in such Books shall be numbered in a consecutive numerical series, which shall commence and terminate with the year, a fresh series being commenced at the beginning of each year. Whenever any instrument for the registration of which application may be made, refers to real and personal property, it shall be entered in Book No. 3 and also in Book No. 1 or 2 as the case may be.

XXIV. At the close of each year, two indices shall be prepared for each Register, one containing the names of all persons mentioned in the instrument registered, as parties thereto, and the other the names of all places so mentioned. These names shall be entered in alphabetical order, and shall show the page in the Register on which the names entered in the indices appear.

XXV. Every instrument presented for registration shall be entered in its appropriate Book according to the order of its presentation, and shall be numbered accordingly. The entry made in the Register shall show the year, month, day, and hour of presentment, the species of instrument presented for registration, the names of the parties to the instrument in full, and the names in full of any persons who may have testified to the identity of the parties to the instrument, after which the instrument shall be transcribed in full. To every entry made as is above prescribed the signatures of the parties to the instrument shall be taken, as well as the signatures of any person who may have testified to the identity of such parties, and the Deputy Registrar shall affix his own signature to the entry, and such signature shall be evidence that the parties to the instrument, and the persons who testified to the identity of such parties, actually appeared before such Deputy Registrar and registered such instrument or testified to such identity.

XXVI. The instrument shall then be returned to the party who may have presented the same for registration, with an endorsement inscribed thereon showing the date of registration, the number of the Book in which such registry shall have been made, and the page of the Book on which such entry shall appear, which endorsement shall be certified by the seal and signature of the Deputy Registrar, and the instrument thus endorsed shall be sufficient proof, on the production thereof in any Court of Justice, that such instrument has been duly registered.

XXVII. Every instrument affecting real property presented for registration shall be presented in duplicate, and the Deputy Registrar, after satisfying himself by careful examination that both copies are in every respect and particular alike, shall, within twenty-four hours after receiving such instrument and returning one copy thereof endorsed as provided in Section XXVI of this Act to the party who presented the same, transmit the other copy to the District Registrar, with a transcript of the entry made in the Register as hereinbefore provided, such copy and such transcript being attested by the official seal and signature of such Deputy Registrar; provided that it shall not be necessary to transmit a copy of the transcript of the instrument entered in the Register. On the receipt of such copy and transcript, the District Registrar shall enter the same in the District Register and indices, in the manner hereinbefore provided for Deputy Registrars, and shall within twenty-four hours after making such entry transmit an exact copy thereof to the General Register Office.

XXVIII. Any person wishing to register a will, a codicil to a will, or any instrument giving authority to his widow to adopt a son after his decease, shall deliver such will or codicil or such instrument in a sealed cover superscribed with the name of the depositor and the nature of the instrument to the District Registrar within whose jurisdiction such person may reside, and the identity of such person shall, if necessary, be proved as provided in Section XIV of this Act.

XXIX. Every District Registrar shall, in addition to the Books prescribed in Section XXIII of this Act, keep two Books, to be entitled—

Register of deposits of wills, and codicils to wills, and instruments giving authority to adopt.

Register of wills, codicils, and instruments giving authority to adopt.

XXX. On receipt of such sealed cover superscribed as is above provided, the District Registrar shall enter the same in the Register of deposits of wills and instruments giving authority to adopt, transcribing therein the superscription on such sealed cover and noting in the Register and on the cover the year, month, day, and hour of such receipt, together with the name of the depositor and the names of the persons testifying to the identity of such depositor, and shall then place such sealed cover in a strong fire-proof box, to be supplied by Government for that purpose.

XXXI. Whenever on the death of any depositor of any sealed packet, application may be made to any District Registrar to deliver up such packet, such District Registrar, after satisfying himself that such depositor is dead, shall in the presence of the person or persons making such application, open such sealed packet and shall enter an exact copy thereof in the Register of wills, codicils, and instruments giving authority to adopt, and such copy so made shall be received in any Court of Justice as the will, codicil, or instrument of the depositor deceased. After a copy of such will, codicil, or instrument shall have been entered in the Register, the original shall be delivered to any person or persons applying for the same, his or their receipt being taken for the same.

XXXII. On the receipt in the General Register Office of any transcript of any entry made in any Register by any District Registrar, the same shall be entered in the Book No. 1, 2, or 3 as the case may be.

XXXIII. An appeal shall lie from any proceeding of any Deputy Registrar under this Act if presented to the District Registrar within thirty days after the performance of the act appealed against, and the District Registrar shall have authority to call before him the parties to the instrument in connection with the registration of which such appeal has been made, the persons who testified to the identity of such parties, and any other person whose evidence in the opinion of such District Registrar may be necessary to a right understanding of the matter in appeal; and the decision of such District Registrar on such appeal shall be final. For procuring the attendance of parties and witnesses, the District Registrar may exercise any or all the powers given to any Judge for procuring the attendance of witnesses by any law now in force or that may hereafter be enacted.

XXXIV. The Registers in the General Register Offices and in the Offices of the District and Deputy Registrars, shall be at all times open to inspection by any person applying to inspect the same, and certified copies of any entry in such Registers shall be given to all persons applying for such copies. A fee of eight annas shall be paid by any person applying to inspect any Register before such Register is opened to his inspection, and a fee of one Rupee over and above the charge of making the transcript shall be paid by every person requiring a copy of any entry in any such Register. The charge to be made for making copies of entries in the Registry shall be regulated from time to time by the General Register Office.

XXXV. Priority of title shall be given to instruments affecting immovable property in the date of their registration, and when two or more instruments are presented for registration at the same time, they shall take precedence according to the date of their execution. But as delay may occur in the negotiation of a sale or other contract, and by reason of the absence of parties the written transfer of property may be delayed, any person may, after the operation of this Act shall have commenced, execute and register a caveat which shall have the effect of preventing the registration of any instrument within the period of six months from having any effect as against an instrument to be registered within such period by the party in whose favor the caveat may have been given. Any instrument registered within six months after such caveat shall have been granted, by the party in whose favor such caveat was entered, shall be entitled to the same preference and advantage as if such instrument had been registered at the time when such caveat was entered.

XXXVI. Every caveat entered as provided in the last preceding Section, shall be copied in the Register and entered in the Index to the Register, as though it were the complete instrument for the protection of which it may have been entered.

XXXVII. All claims founded on registered instruments not affected by other instruments subsequently registered, or by decrees of Court or public sales, shall be enforced on application to the Court having jurisdiction in the matter of such instruments, on a miscellaneous petition. But if it be found that the instrument is not conclusive as to the effect to be given thereto, or that judicial enquiry to warrant the enforcing the same is otherwise necessary, the party making the application shall be referred to a Civil action.

XXXVIII. No party to a registered instrument, sought as above to be enforced, and no heir, representative, or assign of such party, shall be allowed to dispute the act ascribed to such party in such instrument, or the obligation attaching to him thereunder.

XXXIX. Nothing in this Act shall be held to affect the right of Government to its Revenue, or to extend to Bills of Exchange, or to any other negotiable instruments or mercantile documents, or to written agreements known as pottahs and kuboolents between landlords and their tenants or to contracts between ryots and others for the cultivation or delivery of Indigo plant.

XI. No discharge of any contract for value, no discharge of any claim for or upon money or other moveable property, save what may arise from a running account or partnership, conferred, granted or entered into, from and after the period of six months from the passing of this Act, shall be valid, unless the same be endorsed on the instrument on which such claim is founded.

XII. The provisions of this Act shall not be in force in any place within the jurisdiction of the Courts established by Royal Charter.

XIII. In the construction of this Act, unless the contrary appear from the context, the word "transfer" shall import every kind of instrument by which any property or interest therein is alienated, conveyed, assigned, or transferred, or given absolutely, or partially, or conditionally, or on the happening of any future event or contingency, or on the failure to do any act, or pay any money, or by way of mortgage or pledge; and words importing the singular number shall include the plural number, and words importing the plural number shall include the singular number; words importing the masculine gender shall include females.

GOVERNOR GENERAL'S CAMP, LAHORE,

Thursday, the 16th of February 1860.

Notifications.—His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Viceroy and Governor General held a Durbar at Lahore on the 14th instant, for the reception of the Rajah of Kuppoothulla and the Sirdars and Principal Residents of the Punjab.

The Rajah of Kuppoothulla, who had been previously received by His Excellency in Camp, at Phugwarra, on the 31st January, with the honors due to his rank, had a private audience of His Excellency, accompanied by his nearest relatives and Principal Officers, and received on arrival and departure a Salute of 11 Guns.

The Rajah of Furreedkote, accompanied by his son, had also a private audience of the Viceroy.

Afterwards, the above-mentioned Rajahs, and the other Native Chiefs and Gentlemen, together with the Principal Civil and Military Officers of the Station, having been assembled in general Durbar, the Viceroy and Governor General, accompanied by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, and by the Honorable the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, entered and took his seat under a Royal Salute.

Each Native Chief and Gentleman present having been introduced to the Viceroy and Governor General, and the customary tribute and offerings having been presented and accepted, His Excellency addressed the assembled Chiefs in the following words:—

SIRDARS OF THE PUNJAB,—“ I have long wished to visit your country and to be amongst you.

“ I need not tell you that this wish has been greatly strengthened by recent events, and by the recollection of the services which you and your fellow countrymen have lately rendered to the British Government.

“ In other parts of India I have received many distinguished Chiefs of ancient lineage and large influence, who have proved themselves faithful feudatories of the Crown, and many of lower degree, who have been dutiful subjects in the midst of great discouragements and dangers. But in the Punjab I find a whole nation of brave and loyal men.

“ In the name of the Queen I thank you for your fidelity and courage and true service.

“ SIRDARS,—I have seen with pleasure the signs of prosperity with which the Punjab abounds; cultivation extended; commerce increasing; life and property secure; the people orderly and contented.

“ I know that you are not insensible of the value of these benefits to your country, and I am about to call upon you to take your part in confirming and extending them. It is not in times of war and trouble only that the Government of the Queen claims your services; and some among you will shortly be invited to assume the duties which belong to the hereditary chiefs and landholders of a loyal people in times of peace.

“ For this purpose certain powers in Magisterial and Revenue matters will be conferred upon a limited number of you. The Lieutenant-Governor will determine to whom they can be most usefully entrusted, and will explain to you their scope and purpose. In the exercise of them, your best guidance will be the wise and friendly advice which on this and on all occasions you will never fail to receive from Sir Robert Montgomery.

"But remember that those who receive these powers will receive them to be used, not carelessly or for private purposes of their own, but earnestly for the public good, and especially for the expediting of justice, and the maintenance of order among those around them.

"SIRDARS,—I look forward with confidence to the proof, which by a right use of these powers you will give to India and to England, that the Chiefs of the Punjab, are not more conspicuous for their fidelity and bravery in danger, than for their intelligence, sense of justice, and respect for the law, when quiet and prosperity are undisturbed."

Suitable Khilluts were bestowed on all according to their rank, and after the concluding ceremonies, the Viceroy and Governor General left his seat under a Royal Salute. The Rajah of Kuppoothulla was then conducted from the Tent, and the Durbar broken up.

This day the Viceroy and Governor General, accompanied by the Secretary to the Government of India, and by the Officers of His Excellency's Personal Staff, paid a return visit to the Rajah of Kuppoothulla at his encampment.

His Excellency was met by the Rajah himself, and by the relatives and Principal Ministers of His Highness in accordance with established custom, and received both on arrival and departure, a Royal Salute.

The usual offerings were presented and accepted, and the concluding ceremonies having been observed, His Excellency retired.

By Order of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India.

XXXV. Priority of title shall be given to instruments affecting immovable property in the date of their registration, and when two or more instruments are presented for registration at the same time, they shall take precedence according to the date of their execution. But as delay may occur in the negotiation of a sale or other contract, and by reason of the absence of parties the written transfer of property may be delayed, any person may, after the operation of this Act shall have commenced, execute and register a caveat which shall have the effect of preventing the registration of any instrument within the period of six months from having any effect as against an instrument to be registered within such period by the party in whose favor the caveat may have been given. Any instrument registered within six months after such caveat shall have been granted, by the party in whose favor such caveat was entered, shall be entitled to the same preference and advantage as if such instrument had been registered at the time when such caveat was entered.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

SIR,

IN continuation of former correspondence, I am now directed by the Lieutenant-Governor to forward for the perusal of His Excellency the Viceroy, a detailed report of the operations against the Wuzerees by Brigadier-General Chamberlain.

2. His Honor has perused this lucid and succinct report with great satisfaction. The success which has attended the operations is, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor, remarkable. Indeed the insignificance of the loss sustained when compared with the results, stamps the character of the operations described as unique among Expeditions of the sort. The practical and moral results excel those of any former Expedition; a whole tribe has been punished and humbled; three of its leaders have fallen; a quantity of property has been seized, and the whole encampment of the enemy has fallen into the hands of our Force. Meantime while this signal lesson was being conveyed, agency was set on foot to collect every sort of information relative to the country and its people, and a Map executed which will be invaluable for any future operations.

3. Brigadier-General Chamberlain dwells with peculiar satisfaction on the friendly attitude of the other tribes. This constitutes, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor, one of the most noticeable features in the affair. It is attributable no doubt, as stated by the Brigadier-General Commanding, to the hearty aid of the Khans of our own Territory who accompanied the Force, and in this active sympathy, the Lieutenant-Governor recognizes the fruits of that considerate treatment which it has been the policy of the local Government to maintain.

4. Implicit reliance was placed on the word of the British Officer by the Chiefs of the tribes through whose domains the avenging force had of necessity to pass, that if no opposition was attempted, property would be respected, and the curious spectacle was exhibited of the women and children of various tribes, watering their flocks and herds in the same pool with the Army which was passing through with the avowed object of visiting their guilty neighbours and possible relations with signal retribution.

5. The Lieutenant-Governor concurs with Brigadier-General Chamberlain in the political importance attached by him to the exhibition of such manifest sympathy and good-will on the part of the Khans, many of whose relations have taken service in Hindustan.

6. The excellent services rendered by Captain James, the Commissioner of Peshawur, and Captain Henderson, the Deputy Commissioner of Kohat, both of whom accompanied the Force, will find mention in the letter from the Secretary to the local Government forwarding the report of the former Officer.

7. To Brigadier-General Chamberlain himself, the Lieutenant-Governor expresses his great obligations. The whole of the arrangements had been left to the judgment and eminent experience of the Brigadier-General. How completely His Honor was justified in reposing such confidence may be gathered by a perusal of the Despatch which the Lieutenant-Governor has now the satisfaction to forward to His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General.

FROM BRIGADIER-GENERAL N. CHAMBERLAIN, C

Commanding Punjab Irregular Force,

TO MAJOR R. C. LAWRENCE,

Secy. to Govt. Punjab, Mil. Dept.Dated Camp Kohat, 15th January 1860.

SIR,

THE Force which has been employed against the Cabool Khail Wuzerees having yesterday returned to Cantonments, I have now the honor to furnish a detailed report of its operations whilst engaged on Field Service.

2. As soon as it was determined to employ a Force for the coercion of the tribes implicated in the murder of the late Captain Meeham, and for other previous acts of aggression, the necessary measures were at once taken to assemble the required amount of Troops at this Station; but as Abbottabad and Dera Ismael Khan had to furnish Detachments in addition to those supplied from the nearer Cantonments of Peshawur, Murdan and Campbellpore, some little delay was unavoidable.

3. However, on the 15th of December the Force marched from this; on the 19th it was at Thull (66 miles in advance of Kohat) on the left bank of the Koorum River, and the following morning crossed that stream, and encamped near the village of Billund Khail, now in the Territory of His Highness the Ameer of Cabool.

4. The Troops in Camp numbered 3,916 of all ranks, and for a detail of which I beg to refer the Lieutenant-Governor to the Return marked A. To this number has to be added 240 Horse, and 1,216 Foot Levies furnished by this District for temporary employment with the Expeditionary Force, for the purpose of keeping up the communications, holding posts, supplying escorts, &c., so that in round numbers five thousand, three hundred fighting men were employed.

5. As this number may appear large compared to the operations eventually required, I beg to observe that when the Expedition was first determined upon, it was impossible to say what numbers might be opposed to us; how far it might be necessary to follow the Wuzerees into the heart of their mountains. When every additional mile would increase the difficulty of keeping open the communication with the rear, or lastly what was the nature of the difficulties to be overcome, the country there being totally unknown to us.

6. It so happened, however, that the appeals made to the neighbouring tribes by the Cabool Khail for assistance were not responded to, partly I believe from the treasures taken by Captain Henderson, the Deputy Commissioner, to keep them aloof, so that this one tribe was left to oppose us unaided from without.

7. The place selected by them to make their stand was a high range of hills* called Maidance; and to this place they had previously removed all their encampments, including their families, flocks and herds, and prepared for its defence by storing grain and raising breastworks. Maidance is about eight miles West of Billund Khail, and its general features may be described as two parallel ranges contiguous to each other, terminating at either end in a gorge, and enclosing a long narrow valley; the inward slopes of both mountains being tolerably easy and covered with grass and bushes, but the outward sides or faces rugged and precipitous. The two gorges, which are the water channels, are the means of entrance to the valley; the one facing the East being termed Guniob, and the other to the South Zukha.

8. From the information supplied by Captain Henderson, it appeared certain that the easiest and nearest approach was from the Guniob side; but there were many reasons to make it desirable to see the Zukha entrance before settling the plan of attack. Accordingly the Force was halted at Billund Khail the next day (the 21st December), and in company with other Officers, and escorted by a strong Detachment of Cavalry, I carried out that intention. We found the distance to be about sixteen miles from Camp; and from as much as we could see of the gorge without going under fire, not to be inviting. In returning to Camp, I also rode some little distance up the Guniob ravine, and was able thereby to verify the advantages to be expected by adopting that approach.

9. At 6 o'clock the following morning the Troops

Detachment Guide Infantry, under Lieutenant Kennedy.
4th Regiment Sikh Infantry, under Major Rothney.
1st Regiment Punjab Infantry, under Major Lambert.
3rd Regiment Punjab Infantry, under Lieutenant Ruxton.
4th Regiment Punjab Infantry, under Lieutenant Jenkins.
4 Pieces Peshawur Mountain Train, under Captain DeBade.
3 Pieces Huzara Mountain Train, under Captain Butt.

noted in the margin marched upon Guniob, and after winding through low hills and ravines for about seven miles, came in front of the first position occupied by the Wuzerees.

10. The Guide Infantry, supported by the Peshawur Mountain Train and the 4th Sikh Infantry, at once ascended the range of hills to the left, whilst the 1st Punjab Infantry, supported by the Huzara Mountain Train and 3rd Punjab Infantry, crowned the range to the right. The left Column acted under my own orders; the Command of the right Column devolved upon Major Lambert. The orders for both were to advance along the ridges, and in doing so to keep parallel to each other. The 4th Punjab Infantry, acted as reserve, with orders to follow up the bed of the ravine (which ran between and separated the two ranges) so as to close that passage, and be ready to afford assistance to either side if required.

11. Major Lambert's Column was the first in action, it having the easier hill to ascend, and the constant training of the Huzara Mountain Train over the mountains of Huzara, rendering it much more efficient than the Peshawur Train. From some cause or other, the Wuzerees had neither raised breastworks on this side, or apparently expected to be assailed from it, and taken consequently by surprise offered little or no resistance to his Column. This enabled Major Lambert to outflank from his side with the Mountain Guns, the breastworks held on the opposite range; and to this circumstance may I believe, be attributed the little loss sustained by the left Column.

12. On the left range, breastworks had been raised at several points; and at first they were bravely defended. Indeed the charge by a small body of Wuzerees upon the Guide Infantry whilst ascending to the attack of the first breastworks, was as gallant a charge as I have ever seen, and elicited the admiration of all who witnessed it. It soon however became apparent that they were deficient in fire-arms; and opposed to our arms and discipline, sword and shield and pistol had no chance threatened in flank, and pressed in front, they were driven from ridge to ridge at trifling loss to ourselves; and after two hours rough climbing, we were in possession of the heights above their encampments, all their tents and property,

* NOTE.—We afterwards learnt that it was expected we should attack by the Zukha gorge, from our having reconnoitred in that direction, and the Pioneers having been employed the same day in making a Gun Road below Billund Khail. The main body of the Cabool Khail were therefore posted at that entrance.

and such of their cattle and flocks as they had not had time to get off remaining below in the valley at our mercy.*

13. It was now past noon; and in the absence of knowledge of the hills in advance, or the enemy's line of retreat, and the Troops having then been six hours on foot, and having still to return some miles to Camp possibly followed the whole way, I sounded the halt, and ordered the reserve to be employed in setting fire to the encampments and property. In this work they were zealously assisted by bodies of the Foot Levies who had followed in rear; and in the course of two hours every thing was either destroyed or carried away.

14. To have thus to carry destruction, if not destitution, into the homes of some hundreds of families, is the great drawback to border warfare; but with savage tribes to whom there is no right but might, and no law to govern them in their intercourse with the rest of mankind save that which appeals to their own interests, the only course as regards humanity as well as policy is to make all suffer, and thereby for their own interests enlist the great majority on the side of peace and safety.

15. The work of destruction completed, we commenced to retrace our steps towards Camp, which for convenience had during the day been moved to a small open space on the Guniob ravine, and about five miles in advance of its former position near Billund Khail. No attempt was made to molest us during our retirement, and we reached our tents at dark, wet through, rain having fallen during the latter part of the day.

16. Our Casualties were, as I have previously stated, small, being only one killed and sixteen wounded, and for a detail of which I beg to refer you to the Return marked B. to this number has to be added the Casualties* in the escort of the Deputy Commissioner.

17. Of the enemy's loss I cannot speak for certain, but I heard Officers say they had counted fifteen bodies,† and there must have been some wounded.

18. Both the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner were present in the affair. Captain James having accompanied me on the left, and Captain Henderson, Major Lambert's Column on the right.

19. The rain having cleared during the night, it was determined to follow up the advantage of the previous day; so after the Soldiers had cooked an early meal, and the tents had dried sufficiently, all the Infantry (except the Guides) and the two Mountain Teams returned to Maidanee; whilst the Camp escorted by the Guide Infantry, Field Guns and Cavalry, changed ground to Shewa, on the Koorum, ten miles below Billund Khail.

20. After passing the smouldering remains of the enemy's encampments, and on nearing the Zukha exit from the valley, Captain Henderson obtained information which made it appear probable that by crossing over the range to our right, and descending into a small valley named Durnami (which was occupied by the Hussun Khail Wuzerees, who had declined to assist the Cabool Khail) we might be able to come up with some of the flocks and herds belonging to the latter tribe, as they had fled by that route. Captain Henderson therefore pushed on with some of his Levies, whilst I followed in support with a proportion of the Infantry and Hazara Mountain Train, the remainder of the Infantry and Mountain Guns moving straight to Camp through the Zukha gorge, taking in route one of the Cabool Khail encampments which had escaped destruction the previous day, but which they had not had leisure to remove.

21. Captain Henderson's foray proved most successful, and but for night coming on many more flocks and herds would have fallen into our hands. Throughout the day no opposition had been attempted, the few Wuzerees we saw, confining themselves to flourishing their swords from the summit of the hills.

22. That night we all bivouaced in the vale of Durnami. The next morning we commenced our return towards Camp, more flocks and herds falling into our hands. Some high ranges which intervene between Durnami and Shewa rendered it necessary to make a long detour via the Rittoo or Rittie River, and it was three in the afternoon before we reached the tents. Rain fell throughout the day accompanied by a cutting wind; but though many of the men had at last to walk barefooted from their shoes having become worn out by their two days' march over the hills, nothing could have been more cheerful than their manner.

23. Overtures having been received from the Cabool Khail for permission to come in to make terms, the Force halted four days at Shewa to enable their Chiefs to attend. Advantage was taken of this period to place strong escorts at the disposal of the Survey and Engineer Officers to enable them to map the country in the neighbourhood of Camp.

24. Terms having been arranged with the Cabool Khail, the next tribe that had to be settled with was the Torree Khail Wuzerees, who border upon the Bunnoo District, as they also had harboured robbers who harried the Bunnoo border. Their lands lay to the South of the Rittoo River, and therefore a place on that stream called Speem Wahm, distant about ten miles from Shewa, was the most convenient place to move the Camp to, for coercing them.

25. Before making this move however, it was deemed advisable to surprise a small section of the Cabool Khail who had separated themselves for the rest of their tribe, and secreted themselves in some very steep hills a few miles to the South-West of our Camp, in the hopes of evading discovery. Accordingly some hours before daylight on the 28th a Detachment moved out under the Command of Major Rothney, to beat up this party. The difficulty of the route caused more delay than had been anticipated, and the Wuzerees becoming aware of the movement, had time to get off most of their cattle. Some of their tents and property however were burnt; six of their men were killed or wounded; and some cattle and sheep brought away. On our side one Soldier was wounded. The Detachment returned to Camp at dark, having been on foot almost the whole period of its absence.

26. Early the next morning (29th) the Troops noted in the margin marched under my orders to Speem Wahm, the remainder of the Force under the Command of Lieutenant-Colonel Lumsden moving up the river towards Billund Khail, partly for the purpose of securing our communication with the rear, for the sake of supplies, &c., and partly because there was little grass for horses or forage for camels on the Rittoo.

27. The Torree Khail having agreed to the terms required of them, coercion was not needed; but we halted three days at Speem Wahm to enable the tribes to bring in their hostages. This time was employed by the Surveyors in mapping the country, from the top of the mountain called Durweshta, a most extensive view was obtained, including parts of the Kohat and Bunnoo Districts, and the valley of Dour and Khost, advantage was also taken of the opportunity for taking a closer view of Dour by crossing the high plain called Shera Tulla.

28. There being nothing more to detain us at Speem Wahm, on the 2nd instant our Camp moved back to the Koorum River to a spot called Kureera, a little below Shewa. Here we were joined by Major Taylor, the Commissioner, from Bunnoo.

* 2 Sowas wounded.
2 Horses killed.

† Note. - Three of their principal leaders were amongst the number.

29. We had now settled with the Wuzerees located on the right bank of the Koorum, but there remained the Gungee Khail and Omerzai, and Etee or Huttee Khail branches, inhabiting the rugged spurs of the Wullai and Kafir Kote ranges, on the left bank of the Koorum.

30. During the 3rd instant we had to halt to give the Engineers time to blast a passage through a defile, so as to admit of laden camels passing.

31. Early on the 4th I marched with the Troops Hosara Mountain Train, Pioneer Company and Mappers. 3rd Punjab Infantry. noted in the margin for Chuppuree, leaving the Peshawur Mountain Train and 1st and 4th Punjab Infantry encamped at Kureera, so as to keep the defile in our rear open. After a march of full twenty miles through defiles, and up to the bed of a large ravine called Zungurrah we reached the high valley of Chuppuree and pitched our tents near the only spring of water. Major Taylor had informed the tribes of our intention of visiting their country, and called upon the Chiefs to meet him there; but promised that life and property would be respected if no opposition was offered with the example of the Cabool Khail before them, resistance was considered inadvisable; and fully trusting to our word their encampments remained as usual, and their women and children drove their cattle and flocks to water to the pool in front of us.

32. During the 5th and 6th we remained halted to enable the Civil Officers to settle with the tribes. This afforded us ample time for visiting the remarkable group of mountains called Kafir Kote and other places from which the Surveyors could complete their Map.

33. Arrangements having been made with these tribes for the capture and surrender of the actual murderers, the object for which the Expedition had been undertaken was accomplished, and the Troops were therefore free to return to Cantonments.

34. As the 3rd Punjab Infantry had previously been under orders to relieve the 2nd Belooch Regiment at Dera Ghazee Khan, and the 6th Punjab Infantry had marched from Dera Ismael Khan to join the Force, it was a saving of time and money to allow these two Corps to proceed to their destinations direct through the hills vid Bunnoo; and this plan had the further advantage of exhibiting to the border tribes generally the complete success of the Expedition, and our ability to exact reparation when it was our wish to do so; accordingly when we struck our Camp on the 7th instant, the 3rd and 6th Punjab Infantry, accompanied by Major Taylor, marched by the Burgho Muttuo ravine towards Bunnoo, whilst the remainder of the Detachment under myself, retraced its steps by the route we had advanced. It being late before we left, and the march being a long and tedious one over stones and boulders, we had to pass the night in the Koranga ravine, a few miles short of the Koorum.

35. Next morning we moved to Thull; and Lieutenant-Colonel Lumsden and Major Lambert's Detachments, which had been halted respectively near Billand Khail and at Kureera, having been directed to move thence likewise, the Force again became reunited on the confines of the Kohat District.

36. On our return towards Kohat, we halted once again at Gundawar, in Upper Meeranai, to enable the Deputy Commissioner to settle some outstanding cases with the Zymoosht Affghan (independant) tribe. Three more marches brought us into this, yesterday, when the Force was at once broken up just a month from the date of its starting.

37. Upon Captain James, the Commissioner, will devolve the duty of reporting upon the political results of the Expedition, and I have therefore confined myself to a simple statement of the Military Details. That there was not more opposition may I think be attributed to two causes, first the strength and efficiency of the Force; and secondly conviction that we merely desired to exact reparation, and not to bring under subjection. In undertaking and carrying out our object in the depth of winter, we have proved an ability to act whenever our honor or our interests may require us to do so; and this circumstance will I am sure not be without its advantage upon all the tribes in this neighbourhood, whether within or without the border, we were certainly greatly favored as regards weather and an unusually good fall of rain last summer caused us to find more grass and forage than might always be expected at that season.

38. The spirit and conduct of the Troops has been most excellent; and we have returned without the loss of a single follower or animal carried away.

39. The Map made by Captains Johnstone and Pollard will be sent direct by those Officers when completed. To have added thus much to our knowledge of this portion of the border is of itself worth the outlay involved by the Expedition.

40. Upon the Deputy Commissioner, Captain Henderson, has devolved the duty of providing the carriage necessary to enable the Force to move, and of keeping it supplied with provisions. Both duties have been discharged most efficiently. I have also to acknowledge the assistance rendered by him in furnishing intelligence.

41. Before concluding this Report, I consider it my duty further to remark upon the cordial assistance rendered by all the Khans of the District who accompanied the Camp. They have taken a keen interest in our success, and by their heartiness have doubtless raised the authority of Government in general estimation. I am the more ready to lay stress upon this point, feeling as I do assured that so long as we retain the sympathy of the Chiefs and upper classes Trans Indus, so long need there be little fear of any general combination on the part of the mass of the population.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

SIR,

HAVING submitted to His Excellency the Governor General your letter No. 9, dated the 6th instant, forwarding a detailed report of the Operations against the Wuzerees by Brigadier-General Chamberlain, C. B., I am directed to state that His Excellency entirely concurs with the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor, in the cordial approbation expressed by His Honor of the service rendered by Brigadier-General Chamberlain and his appreciation of the valuable results of that service.

The Governor General directs me to request that the Lieutenant-Governor will have the goodness to convey to Brigadier-General Chamberlain his best thanks for the promptitude and success with which these important Operations have been conducted. On the 15th of December last the Force Commanded by that Officer marched from Kohat, and on the 14th of January it returned to that Station, having in the short period of one month exacted reparation from Kabyle Khail Wuzerees for the support and shelter given by them to the murderers of the late Captain Meecham, and having, while effecting that object, exhibited to the tribes of the Districts through which he marched not only the power of the Government to reach and punish those amongst them who are guilty of offence but to careful forbearance towards all others.

I am directed to request that the Governor General's thanks may be particularly conveyed to all the Officers mentioned by Brigadier-General Chamberlain, and generally to the Force which was under his Command.

The Governor General attaches great value to the Survey of the District through which General Chamberlain marched.

The conduct of Captain James, Commissioner of Peshawar and Captain Henderson, Deputy Commissioner of Kohat, in co-operation with Brigadier-General Chamberlain will be duly acknowledged by the Governor General in the Foreign Department.

XXX. XXXI. Whenever on the death of any depositor of any sealed packet, application may be made to any District Registrar to deliver up such packet, such District Registrar, after satisfying himself that such depositor is dead, shall in the presence of the person or persons making such application, open such sealed packet and shall enter an exact copy thereof in the Register of wills, codicils, and instruments giving authority to adopt, and such copy so made shall be received in any Court of Justice as the will, codicil, or instrument of the depositor deceased. After a copy of such will, codicil, or instrument shall have been entered in the Register, the original shall be delivered to any person or persons applying for the same, his or their receipt being taken for the same.

XXXII. On the receipt in the General Register Office of any transcript of any entry made in any Register by any District Registrar, the same shall be entered in the Book No. 1, 2, or 3 as the case may be.

XXXIII. An appeal shall lie from any proceeding of any Deputy Registrar under this Act if presented to the District Registrar within thirty days after the performance of the act appealed against, and the District Registrar shall have authority to call before him the parties to the instrument in connection with the registration of which such appeal has been made, the persons who testified to the identity of such parties, and any other person whose evidence in the opinion of such District Registrar may be necessary to a right understanding of the matter in appeal; and the decision of such District Registrar on such appeal shall be final. For procuring the attendance of parties and witnesses, the District Registrar may exercise any or all the powers given to any Judge for procuring the attendance of witnesses by any law now in force or that may hereafter be enacted.

XXXIV. A fee of eight annas shall be paid by any person applying to inspect any Register before such Register is opened to his inspection, and a fee of one Rupee over and above the charge of making the transcript shall be paid by every person requiring a copy of any entry in any such Register. The charge to be made for making copies of entries in the Registry shall be regulated from time to time by the General Register Office.

XXXV. Priority of title shall be given to instruments affecting immovable property in the date of their registration, and when two or more instruments are presented for registration at the same time, they shall take precedence according to the date of their execution. But as delay may occur in the negotiation of a sale or other contract, and by reason of the absence of parties the written transfer of property may be delayed, any person may, after the operation of this Act shall have commenced, execute and register a caveat which shall have the effect of preventing the registration of any instrument within the period of six months from having any effect as against an instrument to be registered within such period by the party in whose favor the caveat may have been given. Any instrument registered within six months after such caveat shall have been granted, by the party in whose favor such caveat was entered, shall be entitled to the same preference and advantage as if such instrument had been registered at the time when such caveat was entered.

XXXVI. Every caveat entered as provided in the last preceding Section, shall be copied in the Register and entered in the Index to the Register, as though it were the complete instrument for the protection of which it may have been entered.

XXXVII. All claims founded on registered instruments not affected by other instruments subsequently registered, or by decrees of Court or public sales, shall be enforced on application to the Court having jurisdiction in the matter of such instruments, on a miscellaneous petition. But if it be found that the instrument is not conclusive as to the effect to be given thereto, or that judicial enquiry to warrant the enforcing the same is otherwise necessary, the party making the application shall be referred to a Civil action.
